1. At a point located nine kilometers north of Burgas and approximately 200 meters west of the Burgas - Aytos road, there is what appears to be a radar station which includes two fixed radar antennas of an unknown type which have the appearance of a rather high antenna (3-4 meters) with a triple aerial on varying levels. These two antennas are approximately 100 meters apart and between them there are one smaller antenna and three small tile-covered buildings.

2. In a field surrounded by a barbed wire and located in the vicinity of the building which gives access to the Burgas beach, the following were observed:

- a. A telometer without arms;
- b. A covered apparatus which could be a radar set used for firing; and
- c. The carriages of these two apparatus.

No guards or antiaircraft or coastal artillery weapons were observed in the area.

3. The following sketch shows the radar (?) antennas described in Para. 1 above:
